Plot

The novel follows the story of David Mountolive, a young English artist who travels to Corfu in the early 20th century. David is immediately drawn to the island's beauty and culture, and he quickly befriends a group of local artists and intellectuals. As he spends more time on Corfu, David begins to explore his own artistic talents and discovers a passion for painting.

However, David's idyllic life on Corfu is interrupted by the outbreak of World War I. David is forced to leave the island and return to England, where he fights in the war. After the war, David returns to Corfu and tries to pick up where he left off. However, he finds that the island has changed and that he is no longer the same person he was before the war.
