Historical Origins

The Magna Carta Border Knight has its roots in the 13th century, during the reign of King John of England. King John was a tyrannical ruler who violated the rights of his subjects, leading to widespread discontent and rebellion. In 1215, a group of rebellious barons forced King John to sign the Magna Carta, a charter that guaranteed certain rights and privileges to the people, including the right to a fair trial and the protection of property.

To ensure the ongoing enforcement of the Magna Carta, 25 "barons of the realm" were appointed as "Border Knights" to stand guard over the kingdom's boundaries and hold the king accountable to his commitments. These Border Knights were tasked with patrolling the borders, investigating grievances, and intervening in cases of tyranny or abuse of power.

- Human Rights: The Magna Carta Border Knight is a reminder of the importance of protecting fundamental human rights and the ongoing struggle to uphold those rights.
